

Canada – U.S. Copyright Comparison

ACTIVITY	U.S.	CANADA
DIGITAL DELIVERY OF INTERLIBRARY LOANS	A library can send an electronic copy of a journal article directly to the computer of a person requesting it, subject to limits on further copying and distribution.	Copies of journal articles can only be delivered in paper format. Electronic delivery requires permission and payment to the rights holder or a collective representing the rights holder.
CLASSROOM PERFORMANCES	Performances on radio, TV, and CD can be communicated electronically to students outside the classroom without permission or payment to the copyright owner.	Performances on radio, TV, and CD cannot be communicated electronically to students outside the classroom unless permission is obtained and payment made to the copyright owner.
CLASSROOM USE OF FILMS & VIDEOS	Educators can show films and videos in the classroom without payment or permission.	Showing films and videos in the classroom requires payment to rights holders.
FAIR DEALING FOR TEACHING	Fair use for the purpose of teaching permits the use of portions of any work, including a work on the Internet, and includes posting portions of a work on a restricted access Web site for students.	Fair dealing is not permitted for the purpose of teaching.
FAIR DEALING FOR PHOTOCOPYING	Making multiple copies of a work, including class sets, is fair use.	Making multiple copies of a work, including class sets, requires payment to rights holders represented by a collective. Revenues of this collective in 2003 were $26.9 million, most of which was paid by educational institutions.

April 15, 2005

Prepared by the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada (AUCC) and the Copyright Consortium of the Council of Ministers of Education, Canada (CMEC)